

Radha Jagannathan

Education:

Undergraduate: University of Delhi, India, Economics, 1979, B.A.

Undergraduate: Rutgers University, Business, 1989, B.S.

Graduate: Rutgers University, Statistics, 1996, M.S.

Graduate: Princeton University, Public Affairs, 1999, Ph.D.

Appointments:

July, 2005 - present Associate Professor, E.J. Bloustein School of Planning and Public Policy, Rutgers University

July, 1999 - 2005 Assistant Professor, E.J. Bloustein School of Planning and Public Policy, Rutgers University

July, 1983 - 1998 Research Assistant, Research Associate, Research Specialist, Rutgers University

Other appointments: Visiting Research Collaborator, Office of Population Research, Princeton University, 2001 - present

Visiting Fellow, Bendheim-Thoman Center for Research on Child Wellbeing, Princeton University, 2005, 2010

Visiting Professor, University of Konstanz, Germany, Summer 2007

Evaluation Consultant, Johnson & Johnson, 1997 - present

Evaluation Consultant, City of Newark, 2007 - present

Evaluation Consultant, New Brunswick Tomorrow, 1997 - 2005

Honors and Recognition:

1980: Merit Scholarship, Ministry of Education, Delhi, India

2004: Academic Excellence Fund Award, President's Office, Rutgers University

2005: Academic Excellence Fund Award, President's Office, Rutgers University

Faculty Performance Merit Award, 2000, 2001, 2002, 2004, 2005, 2006

2006: DAAD Fellowship, Germany Authority of Higher Education

2007: Jeremy Rose Teaching Excellence Award

2010: Fulbright Scholar, University of Konstanz, Germany, 2010

2010: Frank R. Bruel Memorial Prize for Best Article of the Year, University of Chicago, Social Service Review.

Five Recent Publications, 2004-2010 of 70 books, articles and technical reports

Jagannathan, R., M. J. Camasso and U. Sambamoorthi. (2010). "Experimental Evidence of Welfare Reform Impact on Clinical Anxiety and Depression Levels Among Poor Women." Social Science and Medicine, 71(1):152-160.

Jagannathan, R., M. J. Camasso, and C. Harvey. (2010). "Money or Message? The Price and Social Disapproval Effects of Family Caps on the Fertility Decisions of Women Receiving Welfare." Journal of Social Service Research, 36(4): 346-361.

Camasso, M. J. and R. Jagannathan (2009) "Why Family Caps Work: Evidence from a National Study." Social Service Review 83(3):299-428. Winner of Frank R. Bruel Memorial Prize for Best Article of the Year.

Jagannathan, R., M. J. Camasso, and S. McLanahan. (2005). "Welfare Reform and the Formation of No-parent Families: Pinpointing Affected Child Populations." Social Science Quarterly 86:1080-1103.

Jagannathan, R., M.J. Camasso, and M. Killingsworth. (2004) "New Jersey's Family Cap Experiment: Do Fertility Impacts Differ by Racial Density?" Journal of Labor Economics 22:(2): 315-346.

Five Other Publications

Jagannathan, R. and M. J. Camasso (2005). "Beyond Intention to Treat Analysis in Welfare-to-Work Studies: The Efficacy of Labor Force Attachment, Human Capital Investment and Combined Strategies for Self-Sufficiency." Journal of Social Service Research 31:43-60.

R. Jagannathan, M. J. Camasso, and M. Killingsworth (2004). "Do Family Caps on Welfare Affect Births Among Welfare Recipients? Reconciling Efficacy and Effectiveness Estimates of Impact Through a Blended Design Strategy." American Journal of Evaluation 25: 295-319.

Jagannathan, R.. (2004) "Effect of State Policies on Children's Living Arrangements". Children and Youth Services Review 26:121-141.

Jagannathan, R. (2003) "New Jersey's Family Cap and Welfare Births: An Examination of Fertility Within the Framework of Proximate Determinants." Journal of Urban Affairs 25: 357-375.

Jagannathan, R. (2001) "Relying on Surveys to Study Abortions: Some Cautionary Evidence." American Journal of Public Health 91(11):1825-1831.

Synergistic Activities

Collaborating with faculty from the School of Environment & Biological Sciences at Rutgers, Jagannathan has developed and implemented a nature/science exploration program called Nurture thru Nature (NtN) for New Brunswick elementary school students, which began in the Summer of 2010 and is being evaluated using a classical experimental design. She serves on the editorial board of Children and Youth Services Review and as a reviewer for the Social Service Review, American Journal of Evaluation, Social Science Quarterly, Journal of Marriage and the Family, and Journal of Population Economics.

Collaborators during last four years: M. Camasso (Rutgers), M. Killingsworth (Rutgers), Carol Harvey (Rutgers), Jocelyn Crowley (Rutgers) Carole Walker (Rutgers), Sara McLanahan (Princeton University), Paul Lerman (NJIT).